The ice extends some 60 rods along the base and four or five in height, forming the shape of a half moon in the mountain. As you walk over any portion of this icy region, you can readily discern the coldness to your feet, and by placing your hand in any of the crevices, you would surmise the member was in the frozen regions of Greenland-showing that the snow and rain have congealed and remain ed refrigerator.

A small frame building 20 feet by 14, is erected, modation of a large crowd.

Mr. Deavers informed me that the mountain, in addition to some 150 acres of level and fertile land upon the west bank of the North River, he thought could be purchased for twenty dollars per acre.

I verily believe if some enterprising capitalists would purchase and construct suitable accommodations, this ice mountain would in a short time become transferred at least, to Mexican soil. a noted place of resort. The porosity of its formation, the coolness of the atmosphere in the warmest days. the healthiness of its sparkling ice spring, the total absence of all vermin and insects, combine to render and the turmoils of life.
